What does The Lord of the Rings, Dungeons & Dragons, Harry Potter, Cyberpunk, Halloween, Video Games (like mine) & of course rock music have in common? They are all (apparently) doorways to demonic possession! How sad that my art about Virtue is seen as demonic by charlatans!

Hey, you remember the big fad of backmasking that swept the nation? Just thousands upon thousands of teens sitting around in their bedrooms inserting backward recordings into their favorite albums using expensive audio production software and mastering equipment...

"I buried Paul" on the white album.

I still like the response from Judas Priest when sued over reportedly adding backmasked messages into one of their songs. "If we were going to put any subliminal messages, it would've been 'Buy more of our records.'"

[SpaceBoy's Mummy] I got an 'A' grade in Latin 'O' level and am gutted that I have no inclination to summon demons. All that swotting gone to waste. thevision.com/report-student...

All the "magic spells" in my games, used syllables that were based on Latin words that meant concepts related to what the spell did. Kai-Vas-Flam was to Summon a Large Flame. So once you learned the syllables, you could recognize spells. Harry Potter did similarly.

It's a neat concept. At Quintessence our magic system is still under development and conceptualization, but one idea is to make players find ancient manuscripts in dungeon with Semitic letters of Abjad order, each to be a formula for mystical sciences of magery and alchemy :)

They've taken extreme liberties when interpreting those scriptures. You know something is up when vegetarianism is perceived to be on the same level as "witchcraft". Don't lump all Christians as being like this. Not all of us are morons that think this way.

I won't... there are idiots of all stripes. Ignorance and bigotry know few bounds. Humans just seem susceptible. :)
